My Cloud Story:

Okay. Well. I'm from Atlanta, Georgia. I was born there. Around three I got moved to Chicago. That's where my mother and father got infights a lot. So I basically grew up without a father around, and then my mother used to get sprung off drugs. It was really stressful and I had to provide for myself. Then we moved down here around my 5th grade year. They said my family lived here but I didn't see them until I started playing sports. So it was really tough on me growing up without no mother, no father, or no family to support me. And I wanted to give up so much, and now last month my mom got diagnosed with cancer, and last night it really hit me that I could really lose her for good. And I really have nobody at home to talk to and I gotta keep it all balled up inside. through everything, you know? Well, sometimes I like looking at the sky, and just think, "look at that bird," and see how free they are and wish we could all be free like them. They can roam and go anywhere they want anytime. And don't got any responsibilities, they can just be free. They can fly as far as they want to.
