My Cloud Story:

We used to take vacations in Colorado. One of my favorite spots is the Continental Divide so I'd go up there a lot. One year I was out there and was having a real difficult time personally. It was really, really hard- one of the most difficult things I've ever been through. I would go up there when I wanted to be alone. So I get off the Divide and go down into the mountains. I was looking off down into the valley, and this little cloud comes over and it settles right in front of me and sort of envelopes me and surrounds me in white mist. It was really cool because I had been thinking about a particular scripture. It was neat. It was such an amazing thing for this cloud to just come up the valley and surround me when no one was around. It was comforting in a way- this idea of a presence there with me. That you know you're gonna make it through all this-and it will be okay. I don't know what it was, but it was something. It made me feel a lot better: peaceful and calm.
