

Name Mary Tanner Bailey

Contact information: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

By signing this release form, I authorize Jana Harper to use my name, picture, and cloud story.

Signature: Mary Tanner Bailey

My Cloud Story:

I live out in Kingston Springs on top of a ridgeline. SO we take lots of pretty walks down our street. One day there was a group of us: a couple preteens, some younger ones, and I think someone else was there too. Anyway, a fairly large group of people. And it was just a nice, pleasant day that quickly turned into a stormy day.

The clouds came in and covered everything. Then big, fat raindrops came, and we thought to turn around, but we kept walking and walking. It was a very short storm, so it ended. AS we got to the end of the road and were coming back around, there was a big farmhouse with a big field and an open place, and it's where you see mostly sky.

As the sun started to come back out, instead of turning to a blue sky, the sky turned golden and all the clouds were blue. It was some sort of reflection going on. They were not just a light blue, they were this electric powdery blue. And then came a double rainbow! It was intense. It was probably the most beautiful thing I've ever seen in the sky, and I've seen the Northern Lights and lots of things, but this was really something I've never seen before or since.

I like to hear my children tell the story, "Remember that time when the clouds were all blue...?"